Summary

Programming fuels all my passions and I could not think of a better way to spend my time. Prior to beginning at SeedPaths, an intensive 8-week software development boot camp, I fulfilled my need to create by designing and building theater sets for the theater department in high school and learning to play over nine instruments. I have always loved working with technology and lived out this passion through playing video games competitively. I was even asked to work on future content for a popular online video game resulting in a few of my ideas making it into the game. I am passionate about the creation of software and am excited to work for a company that will allow me to continue learning as I embark on my software development career.
